

Synopsis

The relationship between Japan and South Asia

by Minoru Makihara

The recent disasters in Eastern Japan were beyond anticipation with serious damages to not only to Japan, but reverberating around the world.

It is now up to Japan not only to recover from the damages incurred, but to take this as an opportunity to emerge again as a vibrant economy.

From this point of view, it will be opportune to review the relationship between Japan and South Asia from the point of view of its historic perspective and its current relationship to focus what our future relationship might be.

In so doing, we must review the various challenges which we shall have to overcome, and also review our thoughts within the global context, which are also rapidly changing.